Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 18 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Chilly overnight. Cloudy and windy with some rain Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Blustery sharp showers becoming fewer and further between during the evening, with winds also easing. Largely dry but chilly for a time, with a slight frost and local icy stretches possible, before becoming generally cloudier and windier towards dawn. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Friday:
Cloudy and windy, with spells of rain possible throughout. Mild, but tempered by the strength of the wind, with coastal and upland gales. Some drier periods likely in the east. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Damp and windy but mild Saturday, with rain finally easing and clearing eastwards through Sunday. Monday probably then fine, after a chilly start, perhaps with isolated fog patches. Mainly mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.